7. Clothing Distribution
    a. We highly recommend that you do not enter this area of distribution.
        i. There are already well-known ministries that handle this specific need. Salvation Army, Etc.
        ii. Though the need at the beginning of the disaster is very high, it rapidly falls off.
        iii. The quality of clothing donated is usually far below that which will be accepted by those in need.
        iv. This is a very high-work effort endeavor. It takes a lot of manpower to collect, separate, fold, display, and continue to manage the clothing to create an organized distribution system.
